The Coppers Protest.

A few days since Pine Gazzitzi memtioned the fast of the police having hed been measure taken for new winter uniforms. This was all right. The order was placed in the mends of one of the praminent merchant tailors of the crity, and the suits were to send SS each. Thesday they beome tiss, touch with the quainty of cloth which their uniforms were to be made was not what they expected—and the order did not go. The tailor refused to argue the point, but proceeded to hunt up Chief Jim and tell him his troubles. The boys, it be-ing the "changing" time, found the chief at about the same time the tailor did, and the chief listened to both sides, and informed chief listened to both sides, and informed chief listence to both sides, and informed his force if they were confident they were getting the worst of it to break away and countermand the order. They asked the tailor to do it, and he informed them "he'd see about it." At this the coppers pro-ceeded to the telegraph office and sent a coeded to the telegraph office and sent a telegram to the firm signed by the city police force, that the order sent in was now countermanded. As it is now they will perhaps patronize home industry and get a better quality of goods and at a better rate, several propositions having been made. The question of a ball is being favorably considered by them, and they have received much encouragement.

A WOMAN'S CLAIM.

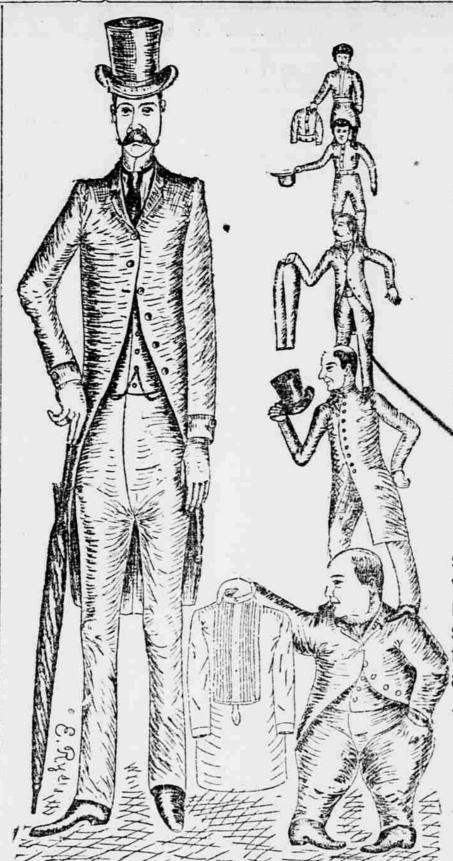

A Prominent Fort Worth Man Finds She's After Hom.

Yesterday morning there arrived in Fort Worth from one of the Eastern states a field, a stranger in the city, who sought the poince, and claimed she was looking for her husband, one G. E. Beach, who she claimed was in business in the city, and desired an officer should accompany her to his place of business. Officer Sche Maddox was assigned to incompany her to the rolling mills on the North Side, with which it was known the G. E. Beach who she claimed was her business, and who, she also claimed was ner nusbane, and who, she also claimed was living with an another woman, was con-acted. On the way out the woman told the officer, in substance, the following story: Some years ago her husband, G. E. Beach, deserted her and came West, and perhaps located in Colorado, and later came cas, and was at present connected the mills referred to above. Since de-ing her, and without procuring a ce, he married, or at least was living toroc, he married, or at least was living ith, another woman, but hearing median ago that she was on a track, instituted proceedings in e Dallas county court for cores from her. She hear of the di orce proceedings being filed, that being informed by her husband, described to make the proceedings being filed, nined to make her appearance, before-d, however, informing the attorneys court at Dallas of her determination to ne and make a defense, and the case was oned from inst week until Thursday is week (to-day). She came to Fort in for the purpose of seeing Mr. Beach, on the officer knocked at his door at its yesterday (Mrs. Beach No. 1 ren the carriage) the woman there him Mr. Beach was in Tyler, to thich pixes he was negotiating to have the cling mill plant removed, but would be in alas to-day (Thursday). The officer mestioned her closely, but the result of his perrogations is only known to himself and the woman who claims to be Mrs. Beach

The latter stated that there was a man The latter stated that there was a man named Harris in Fort Worth who would corroberate her story, but did not know where he lived or worked, he having worked for Beach before their separation. The officer made inquiry and found that Harris was employed at the wagon factory, on the North Side, and thither they went. Finding Harris, the officer questioned him concerning the affair, and he corroborated the story told by the woman, and furthermore Beach owed him $100 for services rendered while in his employ. He had sued Beach for $110 of the amount, and a judgment, was rendered against Beach in his fayor.

The woman come to the city with the offloor then and announced she would be in Dallas to-day to defend the divorce suit, and would, in all probability, meet Mr.

D. to the bishopric of Milwaukee. The event took place in the Episcopal church of St. Marks on Locust street, to which parish the newly made bishop has ministered for many years. The hour fixed for the opening of the ceremonies of the day was 10.0, and promptly at the apointed time the procession moved from the parish building the direction of the church, which was filled to overflowing. First came the choir singing, "Holy Ghost, illuminator, shed thy beams upon our eyes." Following the choir were over 200 clergy from all parts of the country. Behind these came sixteen bishops escorting the bishop-elect, while the vestry of the church brought up the rear. The holy communion was then proceeded with. Bishop McLean of Chicago officiated as celebrant. The sermon was delivered by Bishop Grafton of Fond Lac, Wis. The oath was then administered to Bishop Nicholson while the choir rendered the litany.
